

MANJARI SCHOOL

It was a great dream of Our Lady Queen of the Missions School, Salt Lake, to establish a school for the underprivileged.

Manjari School (meaning "initial stage of flower") began on June 28th, 2017, with just a handful of local children eager to learn. These children came from families with limited resources and faced challenges attending traditional schools.

Dedicated teachers, students, and volunteers provided basic education, ensuring the children didn't miss out on crucial foundational knowledge.

The help for Manjari children extends beyond academics. On a daily basis, these students receive snacks/meals generously contributed by our teachers, students and benefactors. May God bless these generous people. I am grateful to all our students who gave their energy and time in teaching these children. May their selfless service bear fruit abundantly.

For any certificate for volunteer service, students must complete 100 hours of working with these children.

Would you like to volunteer and help these children by contributing something?
